Lisa,

We never discussed a tax credit but did discuss potential LEED credits. Phoenix Fibers, Inc. is a for-profit recycler and cannot legally offer a tax credit for our service. What we provide is a unique recycling service for organizations needing textile recycling. This service also helps keep this material from ending up in our nations landfills.

Some of the companies we partner with are Levi's, GAP, JC Penney, Cotton Inc, Dickies, American Apparel and many others.

Thru your internal recycling initiative, I thought there might be the possibility of your company receiving LEED credits. LEED stands for Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design. If you don't already participate and would like information on LEED, I will put you in contact with someone who can assist you.

The product we receive may be recycled into any number of products. This could range from house, automobile or appliance insulation to prison mattresses. Tracking which product would prove to be too difficult. There is also a certain portion that cannot be used, such as the metal pieces in the buttons and zippers. These are removed and recycled separately.

We truly appreciate the opportunity to partner with companies that have strong recycling initiatives, like Miss Me.

Thank you,

Matt Graham
